The effect of individually calculated tumour volume (ITV) has been assessed by comparing the outcome of patients treated by intracavitary 192Ir brachytherapy with ITVs either larger than (group I) or smaller than (group II) the UK/American Brachytherapy Society (BTS) recommended volume. Patients receiving 192Ir brachytherapy for stage I-II cervix cancer from 1987 to 1989 were reviewed. Treatment was delivered at the Royal Marsden Hospital. A parametric life-table method was used to assess local control and survival. Twenty-nine patients were suitable for analysis. There were no significant differences between the 2 groups regarding age, stage or tumour size. However, there was a statistically significant difference in the incidence
